"MERRY CHRISTMAS!"

That message was flung far and wide yesterday and last night. The army of Good Fellows marched into nooks and corners of the city to banish despair and disappointment.

This morning Chicago awakens to one of the happiest Christmas days of its history, for Santa Claus did not neglect a single family within the corporate limits of our city.

More Space Required.

It was this demand by the Union Trust company for more space in the building adjacent, which it couldn't afford to acquire unless it obtained The Tribune building, that led to the sale of The Tribune property.

The basement of the present Tribune building will be converted by the new owners into a modern safe deposit vault. This will be done as soon as This Tribune present are deposit vault. This will be done as soon as This Tribune present are removed.

policeman should have entered the Mario home.

In a statement to the police Mra. Mario said Hurst, who appeared to be intoxicated, had first entered the cafeteria of Nick Salaja at 2003 Allport street and demanded a Christmas present. Mra. Salaja offered him $2, but he refused to accept it, saying he wanted $5 or nothing at all. She gave him $5.

The policeman then visited the Mario home, according to Mrs. Maric, and demanded $150. Her husband angrily refused to give him anything. It was said that Hurst was the policeman largely responsible for closing the Maric soft drink parlor.

According to Maric, Hurst drew his gun. Maric seized the policeman's club and struck him across the knuckles, causing the gun to fall to the floor. There was a struggle for its possession. Maric says he succeeded in getting it and fired two shots when the policeman charged at him again.

Mrs. Maric then called the police. Hurst said he had gone to the place to search for liquor. Policemen from the Maxwell street station searched the premises, but found no liquor.

It plays, automatically, with beautiful tone-shading. "Reproduces" the music of famous planists. But the Unette also allows you to get into the music yourself. It isn't just a piano to be listened to. Alone among Reproducing Grands, the Tone-shading Unette is specially equipped, and specially built, for personal playing in addition to automatic playing.

On the Unette the music roll is in its natural position (not in a drawer), therefore easily read. There is plenty of knee-room under the keybed; comfortable for planist or player-planist. The player-planist sits close to the plano, and may use the lyre pedals. Then there is a wonderful copyrighted system of Tone Buttons—called the "You-in-it System"—that gives you control of all the effects used by the electric "reproducing" mechanism itself; so, when you want to, the motic does the work and you put in the expression.

The U'nette also is made as a footpower Grand, for the "player fan" who prefers pedals. Plays any make of music roll. All models are the "honeymoon flat" size. Handsome brown mahogany or walnut. And the "Alpha Kappa" model U'nette

Henry C. Lytton & Sons

STATE at JACKSON-Northeast Corner

A Good Old Fashioned CLEARANCE SALE

Most Exceptional Value-Giving Event in the History of Clothingdom

ToMorrow morning The Hub inaugurates the most important, purposeful and far-reaching Clearance Sale of its career—a demonstration of value-giving never before attempted on so magnificent a scale by any American clothing institution. Indeed, it is a good old-fashioned house-cleaning; an aggressive "mark-down for quick selling" of Fall and Winter stocks, preparatory to the adoption of a new business policy—a policy of "greater concentration in buying."

To be in readiness for the inauguration of The Hub's new policy, drastic sacrifices must be made. Therefore, every department has contributed its share toward the success of this progressive movement, with the result that radical reductions are in evidence everywhere, and in many instances fine merchandise is offered without regard to cost or former selling prices. So come early tomorrow morning; come expecting the ultimate in value-giving—you will not be disappointed.

that would be another story. But their election presupposes so complete a departure from the presupposes so complete a departure from the realities of American life as to be outside of serious discussion. They indeed would act as leading agents of the destruction of our common welfare, but they could not hope to become such agents if the foundations of that welfare had not already crumbled away.

It is important to our welfare that, if possible, a wise and strong man should be chosen chief executive and that the party in power should legislate with foresight and wisdom. It is important, but it is not vital. The bearing of our politics upon our lives is overestimated. It is sometimes a benefit, sometimes an affliction, usually a nuisance. But it does not make or shake foundations. Happily for us all, the life of the nation flows in a deep, a resistless, current which may be vaxed upon its surface by the gusty winds of politics, but not turned back or aside. We live and prosper, suffer or decline, in the character of our race, in its instincts and qualities. The character his basic truth, we do well to have confidence in int and future. smoothly and happily. The tension and strain of modern life has relaxed, for a moment at least. That must be a compensating thought, even for those high strung Americans who crave a life of constant activity, speed, and excitement. For others it must be a blessed relief, for which they can devoutly give thanks as long as it lasts.

CHICAGO AS HOST TO THE DEMOCRATS.

The assertion of George Brennan, Illinois Democratic leader, backed by the organized support of Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the Republican national committee; Edward N. Hurley, Melvin A. Traylor and Mayor Dever, that the Democratic national convention shall come to Chicago next year, gives the city reasonable assurance of that event. It is an assurance still dependent upon offi-cial decision, but it can be made doubly sure by siastic support of politicians and busi-

Chicago wants the convention. The city is the logical place for such a gathering. It can accommodate the convention crowds and the convention itself probably with more satisfaction and convenience to all concerned than any other point in the country. The city's location as the railroad center of the United States, and the comparatively cheap cost of travel to the great majority of dele

A good example of deliberate pessimism is the prediction that hext year is to be a year of sincken ing activity because of political uncertainty. That is an old theory, but by no means to be taken for face value. The importance of a national election is exaggerated. We don't deay that if will have some effect upon our affairs. But no man who commit any act so unwise as to strike at the sources of the country's permanent and fundamental well being. Even the highly experimental Mr. Ford, if he were raised to the tramendous responsibility of the presidency, would find himself account that Mr. Ford might do a deal of immediate mischief, if he could control mational action without theck, as for example by trying to apply his notions of currency. But Mr. Ford in a casual interview, and Mr. Ford in the White House, would not show as much resemblance as we assume.

If Deba or Bill Haywood were elected President, that would be another story. But their election presupposes so complete a departure from the involved in our present intolerably slow. Yet it is of great importance that transit across this region should be convenient.

He also can see the statue of Moses Cleaveland, founder of Cleveland, who laid out the town 127 years ago. Bringing the national convention to Cleveland will prove an excellent education in national geography for all the newspaper men of Chicago and New York. It will tend to cure them of strabismus, extending their vision and expanding their outlook on the United States.

PERHAPS it is the Cleveland in Ohio that is the place for the Republican convention, after all. It doesn't seem as though a respectable paper like the Times and Commercial would lie about a little thing like that. Anyhow, we must say in all fairness that the Republican convention might go the Clevelands in New York, Tennessee, and Wis-consin may make it cannot be denied that the

The revolution of last October was a Venizelist trick to attack General Metaxas, as it had been proved by the Eleysis court martial.

Venizelists knowed well enough if Metaxas was to run for premier, they didn't had a chance to win, and for this matter they had to do something to keep Metaxas out of the elections, and they did it by starting the anti-revolution.

General Metaxas who is now in France had told the reporters of the French Press what he thinks of democracy in Greece at the present time. Democracy in Greece at the present time. Democracy in Greece at the present time. Democracy in Greece at the greet people is not rips

Balaban & Katz announce a new era of superior pictures for 1924—

Balaban & Katz cost for pictures this coming year will be from $75,000 to $100,000 more than during 1923. This is due to the fact that producers are making better pictures, taking more time and pains to produce them, buying better stories, selecting more capa-ble casts and choosing directors especially fitted for the subject in hand.

The cream of these superior pictures will be shown by Balaban & Katz who have always followed the set rule of choosing the best efforts of all the big producers regardless of expense. This coming year, therefore, promises to be a particularly interesting one in movingpictures especially at these theatres.

To give you an idea of the new pictures coming which we know to be superior, we mention these few: "HER TEMPORAY HUSBAND," with Sydney Chaplin, Sylvia Breamer, and Owen Moore. "BLACK OXEN," with Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle. NORMA TALMADGE, supported by Joseph Schildkraut, in "THE SONG OF LOVE." RICHARD BARTHEL-MESS supported by Dorothy McKail in "TWENTY-ONE." "TAINTED PEOPLE," featuring Colleen Moore, Anna Q. Nilsson and Mary Alden.

She wired for Selina. She didn't want to be alone with Cyril. Loving too much may be a crime against the other person, but loving too little is a crime against yourself—and both are punishments. Is not every crime a punishment as soon as you realize it is a crime?"

Selline arrived, cool and charming. She wanted, she said, to see the Bald-Toby had told her about them. Helen had not foreseen the Baldwins this. Toby had told her about them. Helen had not foreseen the Baldwins. The wished she hadn't invited Selins. But in the country there are no excuses. They drove out together in a victoria.

"Where is Toby's cottage?" Selina asked.

"In the middle of the wood."

"Like a Hans Andersen?"

"Not very like a Hans Andersen. Altogether Victorian. Arnold Bennett

"In't he? But I must see it.".
"Ned Baldwin will show it to you."
"Is there a picture of the Prince Consort?"
"It has been moved." Helen spoke sharply.
"Congratulate me on my brillian guess. I saw visions of Prince Albert stalking in a top hat. But, then, I suppose that Toby saw no meaning it at all—one way or the other. He isn't civilized enough."

Why do other people rob you with their understanding, stealing your sweries and your guesses, invading the special domains of your insight?

Overton had not changed. The pink begonins were still there and the law high church woodwork. Mrs. Baldwin explained to Selina that all men boys and she added, "Boys will be boys!" Why, Mr. Baldwin himself—lies Catheart wasn't married—not that she, Mrs. Baldwin, wasn't broadded; she felt that every one ought to, see a bit of life. Ned was sowing wild eats. "Poetry," she whispered, filling the word with night club impations.

Helen asked Mr. Baldwin if he liked Overton. Mr. Baldwin said that Mrs. win liked it very much indeed. She found the neighborhood select. The clearly meant so little to him that he was able to endow it with the awance it deserved.

Then, nervously, because the lady really seemed to want mow—conversation had never appeared to him as a line of communica—he mumbled that one always kind of remained oneself wherever one was if the name, in spite of all the moving.

Helen was silent for a moment.

"How do you manage it?" she asked, "staying the same?"

"I can't help it," he answered apologetically.

Then Ned came and brought with him the memory of that perfect hour a the sunrise of her happiness had siled each moment with the rays of ing forward. She didn't want him to see her now with her vision dimmed duled and her heart desdened to the echoing calls of life.

"You," he stammered in his delight.

of the most extraordinary pieces ever written for the musical stage. A simple tale, simply told, of a child of Paris working people who is forbidden marriage and consequently leaves home after a torrential quarrel, it contains a little French law, a little working man's socialism, a great deal of the laboring life and that of the submerged fraction that has to pick rags, and sweep crossings.

Musically it is symphonic in character, with just one full length aria in its extent. Yet from the first page to the last, it fascinates unfallingly. Therefore it is a work of high genius.

Miss Garden's Louise is so marry what she used to be that I do not propose to waste any time this Tuletide morning by pointing out in what details the impersonation has aged, become nervous, agitated, hard finished, or hardboiled. Under a plan proposed yesterday by Charles E. English, newly appointed supervisor of playgrounds for the board of education, the board may extend its community center program with little added expense by putting many of the centers under the playground department.

"At each playground under Mr. English's direction is a playground instructor and an assistant. During the winter months, when community center activities are at their height, there is a noticeable slackening of playground activities. These instructors and assistants are not kept busy by their regular work, Mr. English said, and they can be used to direct community center activities after school hours.

In today's illustration of the simple little afternoon gown of black velvet we find the inevitable touch of trimming occurring in black fox which edges the rather voluminous side drapery. The only other elaboration consists of sleeve bandings and bodice motif in blue velvet embroidered with gold. To balance the drapery on the left side, we find quite a little fullness on the right of the skirt. "I am in hopes some reader will have a pair of riding boots, size 6 or 6%, which I may have. P. M. This especial pair of pajamas is one that a man will not wear every day, or rather every night, unless he has no plain ones, but he will save it for a trip out of town, when he is to stay at a hotel or is to be a week end guest.

The Society for the Promotion of Evangelical Knowledge is an organisation of so-called "broad churchmen" in the Episcopal denomination and elthough not particularly strong in New York, has decided strength in other parts of the country.

Will Wides the Dispute.

Its entrance into the controversy is expected to widen the dispute over the difference of opinion regarding the virgin birth of Christ, which has been a matter of dispute between Episcopal clergymen for years.

The Rev. Alexander Griswold Cummins, rector of Grace church, Pough keepsis, N. Y., was said to be one of those engaged in preparing the expected statement. Dr. Cummins is treasurer of the fund being raised for the defense of the Rev. Lee W. Haston, Forther the defense of the Rev. Lee W. Haston, Parlix, which has been and is taking a prominiment part in the modernist inoversent.

Bishop Manning's ban on the controversy, according to the interpretation being generally placed upon his pastoral letter requesting a Christmas trues, will have expired by next Sunday. It is likely that some of his friends will then reply to the criticism of the bishops make by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, in the printed copy of his previous week's sermor, distributed at the church on Sunday.

Are Bishops Schelarly?

In the appendix to his earlier sermon Dr. Parks questioned the scholarship of the bishops. This and his sasertion that the doctrine of the virgin birth had been "clamped upon the church" as a development of belief in original in were privately resented today by several of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist clergy, nen and it is probable that some of the fundamentalist

Pre-Inventory Sale

Men's and Young Men's

Overcoats Greatly Reduced

The season's accumulation of short lines, broken size ranges and small lots of men's and young men's suits and overcoats will be on sale tomorrow at very much reduced prices. This is all regular stock merchandise—our regular fine qualities, offering an opportunity to save substantially on good clothes.

The Suits at Three Prices

One and two trouser suits in men's and young men's conservative and extreme styles—a varied assortment of colors and patterns—because they are broken lots we cannot be more specific in their description -but you will find every suit an exceptional value at its sale price.

No. The Overcoats Reduced to

The overcoats, besides the broken lots, also include many regular lines priced specially at $46 to reduce our stocks before inventory. Every kind of popular overcoat is included—raglans, ulsters, box backs—full belt, half belt and plain models—colors and styles enough to make choosing easy for any man.

Fur Lined and Fur Collared Coats Drastically Reduced

The mildness of the weather has retarded the sale of fur lined and fur trimmed coats—we have therefore made such drastic price reduc-tions on a large number of these coats that men who ordinarily would not think of buying them can now do so without straining their means.

Clearance Broken Lines of

Boys' Suits 10.75

There are 350 suits in this reduced price offering. They are all wool suits of excellent qualities made in the popular Norfolk belted models. This is an accumulation of short lines and broken sizes assembled for clearance and reduced to 10.75. Sizes in the lot, 8 to 18 years.

Boys' Finer Suits, O'coats and Skater Coats Reduced

The broken lots from our higher priced lines have also been reduced for clearance, offering unusual opportunities for advantageous purchasing of a better quality of boys' clothing.

Men's and Boys' Shoes Reduced Men's tan and black calf and patent leather oxfords and high shoes reduced to 5.95; boys' Champion shoes of tan and black calf reduced to 4.95. SEE OUR OTHER ADVERTISEMENT IN THIS PAPER

We are showing all the latest in corsets for the sub-deb, the young matron, the woman of more mature years. Tomorrow we will show on a living model, so as to better give you an idea of the garment—both with a brassiere top and without, a most practical and comfortable garment.

Young and active women who wish the graceful corselless appearance together with much freedom of action are delighted with it.

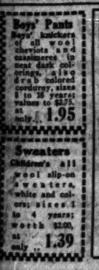

It controls a plump figure, it sways and flexes with every motion. The waistline is so designed that it will not bind and the elimination of the front steel and clasp tends to heighten the uncorseted appearance.

Wall Street can 'call' but the Country won't answer

T used to be that a small group of money barons in Wall Street would press buttons in their private offices and paralyze, almost overnight, the entire business structure of the country.

It was a simple process.

New York would call Chicago's loans. Chicago, in turn, would call St. Louis' loans. Then St. Louis would pass the word along to Sedalia:

"We must have money. Send us the cash. Here are your securities."

And so within a short time about all of the circulating money in the country would be in New York vaults.

Smith, of Sedalia, could be borrow no money to build a factory addition. Jones, the St. Louis wholesaler, would be told by his banker to "proceed with care."

Thus it was that another "presidential year" panic would grip the country-all because New York had called in all the cash and there was no one to call New York.

But now Wall Street is powerless to create such a situation. The Federal Reserve banks stand as a bulwark of safety to see to it that the country's money is kept flowing smoothly and easily through the channels of business. New York can "call its head off" but it can't call in the money.

So the loose talk that you will hear before and during presidential year about "proceeding with care" and "viewing with alarm" is neither sound nor logical.

Cotton is selling at 35c per pound; the farmer's dollar is buying more machinery than it has bought in years; labor is earning more than it has ever earned before—there is every indication that peak prosperity will be reached during 1924.

Manufacturers' and retailers, familiar with these fundamental laws of prosperity, will not preach or practice business cowardice during 1924

Greenebaum Bonds - 100% Safe Since 1855

First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds bearing the name of "Greenebaum" are recognized everywhere as 100% Safe Investments. Implicit confidence in the soundness of these securities is enjoyed by many thousands of careful investors—some families being represented by three generations.

68 Years' Proven Safety

Prompt payment to investors of principal and interest on every Greenebaum Bond for over two-thirds of a century—this is the record of the House of Greenebaum, a record unexcelled by any other First Mortgage Bond

Greenebaum Bank Safeguarded Bonds, listed in our January Investment Guide, were negotiated on the same conservative basis that has made possible the unequaled Greenebaum record. Ask for Investment Guide No. T-1225
